LADIES' CLUB HOLDS OUTING AT SONGO

Thursday, July 21, was a gala day for the Ladies' Club, when over twenty of its members and friends were entertained by Mrs. L. W. Ramsell at her attractive cottage on the shore of Songo Lake, one of nature's beauty spots.

The ladies assembled in the forenoon and the cottage, grove and boats were given over to the disposal of the guests, each making the most of the occasion. At noon a most delicious dinner was served, the guests being seated around a large table in the grove. The dinner consisted of baked beans, salads, hot dishes, relishes, hot rolls, coffee, and many tempting pastries. The day was a perfect summer day and nature lent her every attraction to enhance the beauty of the picturesque surroundings of mountain, lake and forest.

The afternoon was spent in walks about the grounds, games, fancy work, and telling stories. On departing the guests expressed their gratitude to the hostess who entertained in such a charming manner and all felt that the day had been a pleasurable and profitable one indeed, and thus another festive affair to be recorded in the annals of the Club history.

WHY BOYS NEED SCOUTING

H. Leadership. In the years whence crime and religion alike recruit their largest numbers.

During the adolescent years, a boy's reading, his immediate interests, his companions, and his personal habits, are large factors in shaping his later outlook on life. If nothing is provided to guide and interest the boy along these lines, he naturally chooses those forces which are nearest at hand. In a nearby city a group of boys from respectable families were found organized as a gang. Their activity had been confined chiefly in pilfering small articles from stores and hiding them in a cave. In their confessions they admitted that the idea was born in some books they had been reading. If their interests had been allowed to run along proper activity channels such actions would never have been thought of.

No group of people in the world have such a fine sense of justice as boys between the ages of 12 and 18. But that sense of justice can only be brought out by leadership and group training. When boys as a group come into the realization of right and wrong, a great stride has been taken in the formation of good citizenship for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. William Garvey were called to Waterville, Mass., Sunday by the death of Mr. Garvey's brother, Miss Winifred Parada of Rumford is in charge of the Bethel branch of Grant's Apparel Shop.

Miss Frances Mahern, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Fannie B. Lovejoy, has returned to her home in Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Van Jan Kerckhoven were in Rangeley last week, visiting Mrs. Van Jan Kerckhoven's mother, Lincoln Jones, whom she had not seen for 35 years.

The Young People's Society of West Bethel, accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. B. Kenneth Anthony, enjoyed a boating and swimming party and picnic supper at Songo Lake, Saturday evening.

The local baseball team, which was late in getting started, is now organized. A few games have been played and to continue its existence it must depend on support from the town. Those collecting admissions have experienced some difficulty in getting all who attend to pay. The players are giving their time and the best we can do who attend the games is to pay the general admission fee of 25 cents to make it possible to have a team.

3,000 BRAVE RAIN THREAT TO ATTEND CHAPMAN CONCERT

Traveling from every section of the Pine Tree State, 750 persons braved threatening skies Saturday to take an active part in the Chapman Day concert program in the bowl of the Eastern Music Camp at Oakland.

An audience estimated at 3,000 attended the concert, which was termed the greatest musical event that Maine has ever witnessed. A student symphony orchestra of more than 100 accompanied the grand chorus and, headed by Madame Marie Sundellus, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, 11 guest artists appeared.

Dr. William R. Chapman of Bethel was given a tremendous ovation as he walked onto the platform of the bowl. When he appeared at the doorway of the outdoor stage, the orchestra played his famous march, "Waldorf Astoria."

The chorus of 750 was made up of singers from every city in Maine. Aroostook County sent more than 30 to take part in the concert and about 200 singers from Portland were among those in the chorus.

The hundreds who attended the performance were thrilled many times and the guest artists were recalled again and again. Madame Sundellus received a wonderful reception and was compelled to sing three encores.

The guest artists included, in addition to Madame Sundellus, Ethel Pyne, soprano, New York; Gladys Russell, Cook, soprano, Portland; Charles Harrison, tenor, New York; Wesley Lewis, tenor, Portland; William Craig, baritone, New York; Lillian Potter Lavin, soprano, Portland; Martha Hayes Hill, contralto, Portland; Marcia Merrill, mezzo-contralto, Portland; Earle Renwick, baritone, Portland; and Harold Furlong, basso, Portland.

Dr. and Mrs. Chapman remained as guests at the music camp for dinner. Dr. Chapman responded to the repeated cheers in the dining room for a "speech," with a pleasant word of appreciation to the students of the music camp.

1,000 IN CHORUS

Hundreds were thrilled by the mammoth chorus, accompanied by the Eastern Music Camp Symphony Orchestra, which numbered more than 1,000 high school musicians. Dr. Chapman conducted the entire afternoon's program with the exception of the grand finale, "The Star Spangled Banner." This Francis Flindley, director of the Eastern Music Camp, and the orchestra, chorus, and audience joined to make a colorful and fitting conclusion to a brilliant afternoon.

A score of police, and their assistants were at work during the morning parking the hundreds of automobiles.

Chorus of mixed voices. During the morning these singers were rehearsed with the orchestra by Dr. Chapman.

At noon the entire group ate their picnic lunches near the shores of Lake Umbagog or in the pines of the Eastern Music Camp grove.

The concert program was opened when Dr. Chapman stepped to the stage while the Eastern Music Camp orchestra played the first strains of the march, "Waldorf Astoria," composed by Dr. Chapman. The audience burst into applause as Dr. Chapman, in blue coat, white trousers and white sport shoes, walked onto the platform of the Bowl.

DR. W. R. CHAPMAN

Files that brought party after party to the bowl. Many out-of-state automobiles indicated that summer tourists took the opportunity of attending the greatest musical event Maine has witnessed in years.

Threatening rain clouds did not overshadow the spirits of the massed chorus and they sang with heart and soul. Dr. Chapman's baton seemed to act like magic and repeated applause from the audience indicated the appreciation of the excellent program.

Dr. Chapman stepped down from the conductor's stand and came to the front of the stage of the bowl immediately before the opening of the concert to pose for the photographers. He smiled and posed as his picture was snapped.

A very colorful scene took place when Mrs. Dorothy H. Marlen, secretary-registrar of the Eastern Music Camp, stepped to the stage of the bowl and presented Mrs. Chapman with a bouquet of roses. She bowed and waved to the students in the orchestra, who rose in appreciation of the hearty applause which followed.

FACULTY MEMBERS ATTEND

Among the students in the orchestra were faculty members of the Eastern Music Camp, who assisted their pupils throughout the more difficult parts of the program.

Units from nearly every city in Maine were represented in the grand chorus of mixed voices. During the morning these singers were rehearsed with the orchestra by Dr. Chapman.

BETHEL TOWN TEAM CONTINUES TO LOSE BASEBALL GAMES

The Bethel town team continued its losing streak Tuesday afternoon by dropping a 12-6 game to Lovell. This was some different than the 2-1 ten inning game these same two teams played two weeks ago; except that Bethel remained on the small end of the score. This makes six lost, and but one won for Bethel so far this season.

The town team used three pitchers in an attempt to stem the batting tide of Lovell. But even good pitchers have to have support. And that was something Bethel pitchers rarely got. The box score is lacking in enumerating the "ball plays" made by the Bethel team. Especially were these noticeable in the eighth inning when with one out Lovell scampers across the plate with four runs. Two of these were helped by hit balls being fumbled and kicked around second base by Goodard and Wheeler. "Stubby" Wheeler redeemed himself finally, however, by a barehanded catch and double play which ended the inning for Lovell. Two of the four runs were contributed by wild throws to catcher and first baseman.

Allen got a triple early in the game, and Gill and Littlehale each garnered a double. Burnell was the star for Lovell, hitting two hits, one a home run, and being walked twice, scoring four runs himself. Littlehale, catching first base for the local club put in a fine performance.

BETTER POTATO PRICES POSSIBLE THIS FALL

Severe heat in western potato growing states, which carries with it the possibilities for better prices for the Maine potatoes, has increased the interest of Maine growers in the round table discussion to be held in connection with the American Institute of Cooperation meeting in Durham, N. H., Aug. 2-5, according to Maurice D. Jones of the College of Agriculture. "Maine growers are interested," Professor Jones says, "because the heads of the largest potato marketing and distributing organizations in the country will be represented at the meeting which comes to New England for the first time in the history of the institute."

Andrew J. Beck of the American Fruit Growers Inc., Washburn, Maine, and Charles H. McPherson, head of the department of agricultural economics at Orono, will discuss quality in potatoes and its relation to potato prices. Milton E. Smith, a potato grower at Presque Isle, and Harry Umphrey, of the American Fruit Growers in Washburn, will discuss how growers can meet the needs of the chain store from the viewpoint of the producer of the specialized potato area.

W. R. Thompson of Caribou will discuss the problems involved in the National organization of potato marketing facilities. Harvey A. Baum, vice-president and general manager, Atlantic Commission Co., New York City, will discuss the value of chain store purchasing departments as sales agencies for growers.

FARM BUREAU NEWS

A long list of speakers are under consideration by members of the Pomona Grange and Farm Bureau Field Day committee from which it is hoped an early announcement can be made of speakers for the Songo Pond Field Day, Bethel. The date of the field day has been previously announced as Saturday, August 20.

Some dairymen are considering pasturing their second crop or "rowen" after the first hay crop is removed from their fields. This practice seems worthy of recommendation since it does not shorten the winter's supply of hay and at the same time, provides the equivalent to good June pasture at a time when old pastures are drying up. There are many arguments in favor of fencing and concentrated grazing to prevent grass from getting too hard and unpalatable with resulting waste. The cows can then be rotated to other similar plots, giving the preceding plot a rest. Let the cows do the haying. They will get more hay and get it when it will make the most milk.

In connection with woodlot improvement and the establishment of woodlot improvement demonstration plots, the County Agent reports a fairly good distribution of such plots over the county. There are some areas however, that will be considered especially in locating demonstration areas for another year. These will include, Oxford, Brownfield, Lovell, Sweden, Norway, Dixfield, North Norway and Hibernia. Any farmers or foresters in these towns who would like to discuss the various phases of woodlot improvement such as thinning, weeding, improvement, cutting and pruning, please drop a card to your County Agent, D. H. Ridley, at South Paris.

A Better Blueberry contest under the supervision of the Maine Experiment Station is underway in which money prizes will be given to those sending in the best specimens of blueberries. A single bunch is all that is needed and may be either from a low bush or high bush species. Your County Agent has jars complete with formaldehyde solution for holding the sample. Write for complete information.

"Rose bugs" have been reported doing some damage to beans and young apple trees. This destructive, chewing insect is difficult to kill. It is believed that arsenate of lead poison can be made much more effective against them if enough molasses is added to sweeten the spray mixture.

Forty milk sample mailing kits are being sent out for the first time on Monday, July 25 by the new Dairy Record Club recently formed. Plans are now being made for a meeting of the forty dairy members sometime during the month of August.

Carroll R. DeCoster, a Norway poultryman and president of the Oxford County Poultry Improvement Association, has called a meeting of that body for Wednesday evening, July 27, 7:00 P. M. Standard Time at the Farm Bureau Office, South Paris. Matters under discussion will include (1) a flock certification plan for Maine, (2) an advertising plan for developing interest in Maine poultry stock, (3) the Summer Poultry School. H. L. Richardson, Extension Poultry Specialist will be speaker of the evening.

Potato Disease meetings have been held in the communities of E. Bethel, Bethel, So. Paris, Denmark, Brownfield, Upton, Fryeburg, So. Paris, Sumner, Norway and Oxford. Seventy four farmers have attended these meetings. The interest has been keen at all meetings. When the various diseases are pointed out it is easy to see why many potato fields look sick and irregular, while others look vigorous, green and even. A. K. Gardner, Poultry Specialist will be present at the meetings in Andover, North Ramford, North Lovell and Waterford.

Damage to the extent of $5,000 was done to the Wedgewood Cafe on Congress Street, Rumford, in an early morning fire Monday. The fire company succeeded in confining the fire to the rear of the building. The Kersey's Sign Service, Inc., occupied the upper story and the damage there was estimated at $200. Offices formerly occupied by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and the Rumford Beauty Shop were vacant but some unfurnished furnishings belonging to Mr. Levin, the owner of the block, were lost.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Head and son John were in Andover the guest of Mrs. Head's parents Sunday. Mrs. George Auger and two children have returned from a two week's visit with Mr. Auger in Canada. Leland Milla, who has been on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Warren Martin, of Harrison, has returned home. Hollis Hutchinson and wife and daughter of Bethel spent the week end with Archie Hutchinson and wife.

Mrs. Estella Goodridge, who has spent two weeks with her daughter Mrs. R. M. Kneeland and family in Saco, has returned home.

Mrs. H. M. Kneeland and children of Saco are spending the week with her mother, Mrs. Estella Goodridge.

Frank Bushley has moved his family to North Norway.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Rolfe and son Clarence, were in Appleton over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bennett were in Harrison one day last week.

Evelyn Whitman is assisting Mrs. Allen Mason in her house work.

Mrs. Alice Mason of Brooklyn, N. Y., is stopping with Mrs. Emma Mills for the summer.

Billy Young is working in Gilead. It is understood that Hollis Hutchinson has bought the Abbott cottage in the river road and will move there soon.

SAVING STEPS IN THE KITCHEN

It asked "Do you like to walk," the most of us would answer "yes." But if the walking was confined to the kitchen it might be quite different.

The Extension Service encourages women to improve their kitchens as a way of saving steps and conserving energy, and the agent is never too busy to visit a home and help a housewife with her plans.

Oxford County, this year, has 55 women who are interested in making some definite changes in their kitchens. They have agreed to act as demonstrators, and may be found in the following communities:

Andover, 13 cooperators; Buckfield, 5; Canton, 7; Dixfield, 2; East Bethel, 7; Fryeburg, 2; Mexico, 2; Norway, 3; Roxbury, 3; Rumford, 6; South Paris, 1; Upton, 3; and Waterford, 1.

Saving time and steps in the doing of one's housework is not necessarily the result of spending money. Often the saving may be made by rearranging equipment, by making a new daily plan of work, by securing the cooperation of the family or by better working methods. A homemaker in Lyman, Wyoming, found that by moving one cupboard she saved 500 steps per day! A group of 17 women in this same community rearranged their methods of housekeeping so as to save 153 hours per week.

This saving allows the homemaker time for rest, recreation or for being with the children.

Women who are interested in this very practical means of making time for some of the things they want to do, should communicate with the Farm Bureau Home Management Leader in their own community or the county Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Ada Brewster, at South Paris.

A limited supply of poultry school programs are now on hand at the Farm Bureau Office, Poultrymen who have not received a copy through the mails may obtain one through this source.

The "Arrangement of Cut Flowers" was the topic discussed by Miss Edna Cobb, Home Management Specialist of the University of Maine at the South Paris Grange Hall. Farm Bureau leaders from all over the county came for this training. Each in turn will go back to her own community and pass on what she learned, to the local Farm Bureau group. Representatives were present from East Bethel, Canton Point, Canton, North Rumford, Buckfield, East Peru, West Peru, Peru, Middle Intervale, Mexico, Norway, South Paris, Bryant Pond, Roxbury, Bethel, Waterford and North Paris.

"Keep your arrangements simple," says Miss Cobb, "and your results are likely to be pleasing." The simple vases are always the best. The container should serve to emphasize the flowers and not attract the eye to itself. Dried beet or pickle jars of plain glass are often better as flower receptacles than expensive vases.

Damage to the extent of $5,000 was done to the Wedgewood Cafe on Congress Street, Rumford, in an early morning fire Monday. The fire company succeeded in confining the fire to the rear of the building. The Kersey's Sign Service, Inc., occupied the upper story and the damage there was estimated at $200. Offices formerly occupied by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and the Rumford Beauty Shop were vacant but some unfurnished furnishings belonging to Mr. Levin, the owner of the block, were lost.

Extension work in farm economics including adjustments in farm operations to meet changing conditions and the keeping of business records of the farm to determine the most productive commodities, has become well established for adult farmers. That this type of Extension teaching, also has considerable value in 4-H club work will be discussed in a talk entitled "Farm Economics Help Older Club Members," to be given by James K. Harris, a 4-H club member of 10 years' standing in Ohio.

The National 4-H music achievement list will be broadcast at this time. Club members will be asked to identify for their own information the music played by the U. S. Marine Band.

A CLUB BOY'S PHILOSOPHY

'Tis a grand old place—this farm of ours,
With meadows wide and shady bowers.
The corn stands ripening row on row,
Dad's field and mine—both you know,
Planted just right the 4-H way—
Who says that club work doesn't pay?

Why should I stray from the farm away?
To spend my life in the city gray?
In raising calves I take delight,
Because I've learned to do it right,
There's only one method—the 4-H way—
Who says that club work doesn't pay?

There's a lot on our farm to be proud of, indeed!
We have purebred stock and pedigreed seed,
By following the advice of our college, you see,
We're in business together—Dad and me—
Who says that club work doesn't pay?

ELYN ACTON glanced quickly around to see whether any of the others were watching, then deftly returned two rolls from her gay little leather handbag and put them on the table beside her cup of steaming coffee. In this very glorious she was only 20 cents and it gave her a feeling of prosperity to break-with the successful business men women of the town.

This morning, however, she was depressed because for three solid days she had been hunting a position without success and her funds were reduced to small change and a ment was only a nagging mon-to her. She looked wistfully at the piece of fried ham that it pa-had hastily left on his plate at next table and crinkled her little face as its fragrance came invitingly her. It seemed to tease her and she the dry rolls drier in her mouth.

After she had finished she did strange thing. As she rose from the table she opened her purse, took out a small piece of paper, then sat down at the ham table. As she scribbled aimless words she noticed that there was a clean spoon beside the plate and the knife had only been used for cutting, so she was afraid of being a matter of seconds now and she said she was not actually placing his finger went in her mouth—sensing at some one was at her elbow she looked up into the implacable face of a man.

"Toriom, madam, permit me to reuse this and you will have more to write."

The ham was whisked away and the

A FEW MOMENTS
WITH THE POETSKIPLING HAD WRITTEN IT
LIKE THIS

You can see what some folk call
"depression"
As nothing but a spin of Fortune's wheel;
You can keep your poise and self-possession
No matter what you think or how you feel;
You can view a stupid situation
All cluttered up with "ifs" and "aws"
and "buts"

And take it at its proper valuation—
A challenge to your common sense and guts;
You can rise above the mess and muddle;
If you can glimpse a rainbow
through the clouds
Then Doubt and Dread and Fear are in a huddle
And Hope is being measured for a you can keep a saving sense of humor
For stories that are slightly inexact;
You can disregard Report and Rumor,
And not accept a statement as a fact;
You can spread the gospel of successes,
If you can stir the spirit that instills the latent life in lathes and looms and presses
And lift the stream above a thousand miles
Briefly you can spend an extra dollar;

If you can pry the sacred Roll apart
And buy another shirt on shoe or collar
And act as if it didn't break your heart;
If you have faith in those with whom you labor,
And trust in those with whom you make a trade;
If you believe in friend and next door neighbor
And heed examples pioneers have made;
If you expect the sun to rise tomorrow;
If you are sure that somewhere
"things are blue—"
Take up and pack away the futile
For better days are largely up to
YOU!"

His Majesty, the Cat
Leroy F. Jackson

As we were down at Missus Blair's
She had a lot of golden chairs,
On a velvet cushion sat
His Gracious Majesty, the Cat.

And a maid to bring him meat,
And a maid to wash his feet,
And a maid to mind what they were at,
Was His Majesty, the Cat.

And here, he cried with lifted paw,
I don't like my liver raw;
And I don't, and that is that,"
Said His Majesty, the Cat.

And he was polished tooth and nail,
With ribbons 'round his neck and tail,
And every one must raise his hat
To His Majesty, the Cat.

And Billie Hill, he went with me,
And he's as smartly as can be;
And Billie Hill, he just said, "Seat,"
To His Majesty, the Cat.

YOUR DOG
Jeanette Norland

Do never scolds when things go wrong,
Do senses when its sob or song,
Do's always there to go along?
Your dog.

Do watches every word you say,
Do knows just when you want to play,
Do whom you never can repay?
Your dog.

Do understands your every whim,
Do knows just what you say to him,
Do mood is yours when gay or grim?
Your dog.

Can man find a better friend?
Do will stand by him till the end,
Canter where his footsteps wend?
His dog.

MEMOIRS OF THE OLD SONGO
SCHOOLHOUSE, ALBANY, MAINE
Mrs. Caroline L. Cole

Have you heard the tidings, schoolmates?
Near friends of long ago?
Listen, while I tell you,
And you'll grieve with me I know.

Dear old Songo schoolhouse,
Where in youth we loved to meet,
No longer again re-echo,
The sound of noisy feet.

Light the sad news reached me,
And tears ran down like rain,
For I knew the dear old schoolhouse,
Should never see again.

Was not so very ancient,
And its timbers all were sound,
Till wantonly disfigured,
And by time and tempest browned.

In these days of progress,
Years roll on apace,
The hands remove all landmarks,
While we grieve with tear wet face.

Stand, this old red schoolhouse,
Some three score years or more,
Many farthings distant
From Songo's sandy shore.

Looking southward from its windows,
Through the pine woods standing Near,
Could be seen the mossy grave-yard,
Where are resting schoolmates dear.

Whom cruel death relentless,
In its icy grasp had seized,
And torn them from our number,
And cared not that we grieved.

But comes this thought to comfort
And console us while we weep,
There, they are free from pain and sorrow,
And naught disturbs their sleep.

Sleep on! dear dark eyed Julia,
In thy mossy grave so green,
And Hannah, with the blue eyes,
Thy rest is sweet, I ween!

When Gabriel's trump resounding,
Shall echo through the air,
Reaching earth's remotest regions,
I hope to meet you there.

Old schoolhouse, worn and time worn,
Now demolished and laid low,
You bring saddened recollections,
Of the days of long ago.

'Twas there, on my teacher leaning,
When a little child of three,
With her kindly arms around me,
I learned my A B C.

And tonight methinks I see her,
As then a fair, young girl,
Her sweet face framed most charming
In a mass of jetty curls.

She will never be forgotten,
At her name my bosom swells,
Martha Brown! Oh! speak it softly,
For in heaven now she dwells.

And I see once more my schoolmates,
Their voices again I hear,
With mirth and laughter ringing
Through that school-room, loved so dear.

On the green, again we're playing,
Neath the blue of a summer sky,
And o'er rocks lightly springing
In the brooklet rippling by.

But when the summer ended,
And the winter with its snow
Had hidden our grassy playground,
And checked the brooklet's flow.

There, in that cherished schoolroom,
The fires burning bright,
Wintry blasts were scarcely heeded,
With hearts so warm and light.

In our linsey-woolsey, dresses,
The boys in homespun grey,
Without the winds might whistle,
We were happy, blithe and gay.

To teach that school in winter,
A "master" always came,
With rod and rule to frighten,
And mischievous ones to tame.

"Birch rule" so said our elders,
Some forty years ago,
'Is jest the thing for 'the Songo boys,' I'd hev them for tu know."

But it wasn't every "master,"
Who cared to apply that rule,
For they were sturdy fellows,
Who then attended school.

But those veterans of "ye olden time,"
With sayings quaint and droll,
Didn't believe in "moral suasion,"
For the boys of the Songo school.

And as they "alred" their wisdom,
With knowing winks and sly,
"The Songo Boys" their counsels kept,
But "winked the other eye."

There were "Syd," and "Jack," and "Wallace,"
And "Jesse," and "Walt," and "Lat,"
Who, not for John L. in his glory,
Would have been deigned to doff their hat.

They were muscular, strong and stalwart,
Those boys of Songo fame,
Although not "up" in science,
They could "get there" just the same.

And when some smooth faced strip-pling,
With self important air,
Dressed in the latest fashion,
With oiled and shining hair.

Came "strutting" through the schoolroom,
With "ruler" strong and stout,
Some one of them would ask him,
"Does your mother know you're out?"

If, as was right and proper,
He, resentment dared to show,
(Perhaps I ought not to tell it)
They would roll him in the snow.

"You're just as mean as you can be,"
Cried the girls with angry tears,
"And we'll never speak to you again,
If we live a hundred years."

STOPS HEADACHE
IN FIVE MINUTES

A Wonderful Formula Ends Aches and Pains Almost Like Magic.
Something Better and Safer!

Thousands of men and women are now stopping the biting, searing, splitting headaches, as well as the excruciating pains of rheumatism, neuritis, toothache, etc., with a marvelous new formula that is said to be far superior to any thing heretofore used.

It contains no aspirin, acetaminol, etc., and is absolutely safe and harmless. This remarkable formula, called A-VOL, is being prescribed by thousands of doctors, dentists and welfare nurses because of the quick, efficient way it relieves all types of aches and pains without depressing the heart, or causing any other harmful effects. A-VOL, quickly stops the most severe pain, leaving the patient refreshed and feeling fine. Especially effective in women's period pains.

To quickly prove to yourself that this is truly a remarkable formula, just step into your nearest drug store and get a package of A-VOL for a few cents. Take a couple of tablets right there. If your pain is not gone in five minutes, the clock will return your money.

And, they might have kept their promise,
For every word was meant,
But spelling schools and moonlight,
Soon made them to relent.

For girls were girls, and boys were boys,
In "Auld Lang Syne," as now,
And Cupid was just as busy,
With his arrow and his bow.

Songo boys, of late edition,
Who need not now, "birch rule"
Of the "good old times" what think
you
When your "daddies" went to school?

But many years have intervened,
Since the scenes of which I write,
Occurred in that old school-room,
Where childhood winged its flight.

Soon, around a schoolhouse modern,
There, standing on the site,
Of the one so loved and cherished,
And o'er which I grieve to-night.

Other children will be playing,
With smiling faces fair,
On the green and in the brooklet,
With ne'er a thought of care.

On the sandy shores of Songo,
With joyous hearts and gay,
In the rhythmic waves that ripple,
Bare-footed boys will play.

We are getting past the noon-tide,
And time is fleeting fast,
From the wheel that moves it onward,
The hand was never cast.

Soon for us will come the evening,
Then will dawn that perfect day,
When from eyes grown dim with weeping,
All tears are wiped away.

Now good night, old Songo school-
mates,
Good bye, 'till we meet again,
If I've pleased you with my rhyming,
My time was not in vain.

"Should old acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to mind?
Should old acquaintance be forgot,
And the days of Auld Lang Syne?"

TWO-MINUTE SERMON

by REV. GEORGE HENRY

LOOK OUT!

Certain forward looking gentlemen are continually pointing out to us glimpsing pictures of the future. "Look up" they cry, "the sun is shining." True enough. But we will do well to look around a bit and to look out at the same time. Jesus lived for his day and for his own people quite as much as for peoples of ages yet to come. Conscious of the shining sun, yet still he probed the shadows. Men sometimes put a wrong construction upon "the mark of high calling." The high calling of Christ is a call to service. With eyes fixed continually upon our own eternal destiny we are apt to miss our opportunities. While we are enjoying the sunshine we are apt to forget those who languish and sorrow in shadow land. There is much of pain and sadness in this old world, my friend. If we are among the more fortunate, let us thank God; then, let us use the talents and strength that He has given us, to help others on the way.

Archangel's Watch Kept

Through the "Daisy's Eye"

The white-beath aster or Michaelmas daisy, in old fields and beside roadways, is common from Maine to Minnesota and southward. It is named for Michael, archangel of heaven, "who is like God" and is mentioned in the Bible as being in special charge of the Israelites as a nation. It is said that the "daisy's eye" of this little daisy Michael, who disputed with Satan about the body of Moses and with his angels warred against the devil in upper regions, looks out from Paradise upon the ways of human beings, their troubles and joys. It was the Archangel Michael who, accompanied by a group of Cherubim, drove our father Adam and mother Eve out of the Garden of Eden. The Cherubim were mysterious composite beings, winged footstools and chariots of the Almighty; figuratively, fullness of knowledge or an influence proceeding from God and descending upon men. The Michaelmas daisy, aster trifolius, has tiny flowers, white with yellow disks and 15-25 rays. Stems and flower peduncles have very small health-like linear leaves. Lovers sitting in Paradise on old turfsmoles in the gloaming, or mossy logs by woodland roads, the "daisy's eye" of Michael upon them, should remember that for their sin earth's first lovers were condemned to earn their bread by the sweat of their brows.—Otis Swift in the New York World-Telegram.

Eye Care Saves Much

Bodily Nervous Energy

Six of the twelve sets of nerves in the head lead to the eyes, according to M. J. Julian of the Better Vision Institute, utilizing more of the available nervous energy than is required for any other one organ of the body. One authority has estimated that one-half of the energy required by the five senses is absorbed by the eyes alone, moving the eyelids, shifting the eye, dilating the pupil, recording the visual and color images and transmitting them to the brain. "Eyes that are out of adjustment require even more energy," says Mr. Julian. "It is even worse if one eye is normal and one subnormal, for then there is a conflict between the effectiveness of the images that are registered and the corresponding messages sent to the brain. Eyesight specialists, in normalizing sight, are in reality conserving the resources of energy of the body, balancing the budget of 'current' that the various organs require. No one has estimated the amount of energy which a pair of glasses saves in a lifetime, but it can easily be guessed from the headaches and general tiredness that weak eyes invariably lead to."

Attends All

A group of professional men had gathered in the lobby of a hotel and proceeded to make themselves known to one another.

"My name is Portogues," said one, extending his hand. "I'm a painter—work in water colors chiefly."

"Indeed," said in another, "I'm an artist, too. I work in bronze."

"Well, this is a third hand," said a third, "I work in stone."

"Then the next little fellow who had been invited to keep apart stepped up with a fourth, 'I'm a doctor—the acquaintance of you gentlemen for I live in a room on the top floor with you. I'm a cult professor, I work in ivory.'"

Fish in Swimming Tank
It seems that the French people are not so keen about fishing use of swimming tanks to the winter months and the result is that these places are not profitable in the cold weather. In order to make use of the plant during the dull season, a Parisian pond proprietor started his swimming tank with fish and it proved a great attraction for anglers. The fishermen are charged an admission fee and are allowed to catch a limited number of fish. If they desire to go over the limit they must pay for the privilege, the charge being returned by the number of fish.

Columbus and Cannibals
Columbus' first voyage came into contact with any tribe of people whom he knew to be cannibals. The friend to Indians who claims to be engaged in the St. Katherine, Haiti and other West Indian islands to add him of converting these tribesmen on the faith. The natives, who were a warlike and ferocious race, especially lived in the West Indies, but at that time were on the march of South America. Columbus, in his journal, wrote that the natives of the Antilles lived in great fear of the entrance of the Spaniards, or people of the place Exchange.

Scholars Not Agreed

on Pharaoh of Exodus

The Jewish encyclopedia states that "most scholars identify with the Pharaoh of the oppression Rameses II, son of Seti, who ruled over Egypt for 67 years. He is known to have built in lower Egypt many structures of a character similar to those indicated by Exodus 1:11. . . . Merneptah II, his son, would then be the Pharaoh of the exodus. . . . Still it has been argued that under the reign of Merneptah II Egypt was too well organized for the rebellion of the Israelites to have been successful. His successor, Seti II, therefore, under whom a general administrative disintegration set in, is suggested as the ruler who was forced to acquiesce in the demands of the Hebrews."

As to the time, it is stated that "The dates given in the Bible, though involved in much confusion, lend strong probability to the assumption that the exodus took place under a king of the nineteenth dynasty (about 1500-1300 B. C.). Egypt, 833, fixes the interval between the exodus and the building of the temple at over 450 years. Rehoboam—11 years after the building of the temple—is contemporaneous with Shishak, the first king of the twenty-second dynasty (about 950 B. C.). This would give about 1470 B. C. for the exodus."

Quern Still in Use in

Ireland and Scotland

One of the earliest types of mill used for grinding corn, the quern, is still to be found in use in some of the more remote parts of Ireland and in the Hebrides and Shetlands. It is a primitive type of mill, yet ingenious in its operation. It is composed of two circular flat stones, the upper of which is drilled through the center with a funnel-shaped opening. A wooden or metal pin inserted in the center of the lower stone provides an axis about which the upper stone revolves. Set in the outer edge of the upper stone is another pin used as a handle for turning the stone. The grain to be ground is dropped with the funnel-shaped opening in the center, while the upper stone is turned with the other hand. The meal thus produced is coarse, but never theless meets the needs of those using the quern.

Her Maiden Effort

Her courtship had continued for some time. He was a young attorney striving to get into the legislature. She guilelessly (perhaps) got him to instruct her in parliamentary practice. On this particular evening he had reached the place where he was explaining how the presiding officer at the assembly when a measure was ready to be voted on. She had seemed rather preoccupied all the evening, and at this point she interrupted with, "Beg your pardon? but I really didn't get that last sentence." "Are you ready for the question?" he repeated, smiling indulgently. "Why, yes, George," she cooed, "but you might as well spring it without the preliminaries."

High Lighthouse

On a tiny island, Lohu, in the Ha-eilan group, the government has the highest lighthouse service. It is on a ten-foot high rock and stands 707 feet above the Pacific ocean. Because it is difficult to climb the rock, the light, which shows ten flashes a minute, is capable of burning a whole year without attention. Twice a year it is visited by a lightship tender for installation of new tanks of gas.

Ordinarily lightships are made to stand 100 or 200 feet above sea level, so they will not be obscured by low tides. But in Hawaii, where the trade winds cross, fog is a daily-capper's work.

Settles Federal Claims

The United States Court of Claims was established in 1855 to adjudicate claims against the United States. It consists of six judges, a chief justice and four associates, and sits at Washington. The court considers matters placed before it and upon the first day of each regular session of congress presents the findings of the court for the year, and upon recommendation of the court congress appropriates money for the payment of the awards. It is not necessary for more than a majority of the judges to approve.

New Zealand Legends

Feature "Pelorus Jack"

There is a reference to "Pelorus Jack" in W. D. Boyce's book "Australia and New Zealand." He states that this was a 14-foot dolphin which made its home in French pass, a channel between the South Island of New Zealand and a small island off its northern coast. This channel for years had "a singular claim to distinction because through its waters ships were often piloted by Pelorus Jack, which met the ships and accompanied them through the pass, diving and plunging around their keels. Parliament passed an act (in 1904) to protect him, but Pelorus Jack has disappeared. A whaling steamer operated in the vicinity of the pass a few years ago and the dolphin was never seen again. There were many strange stories told of him; the Matoris declared that he was not less than two hundred and fifty-seven years old." Other books on New Zealand mention various Maori legends of this dolphin, which is named after Pelorus sound nearby. To the Maoris, he is a tanwhi, or ocean-god, a beneficent deity.

Detroit's Future Seen

by George Washington

Among other evidences of the foresight of George Washington, newly brought to light, is the recognition of the importance of Detroit as a waterway center in the development of the nation. As early as 1783, according to documents in the possession of the Clements library of the University of Michigan, Washington clearly foresaw and stated that Detroit—then a frontier village of a few hundred inhabitants—was "a point through which the trade of the lakes, Huron and all above it, must pass, if it centers in any state of the Union."

Since he could not have foreseen the importance of railways, Washington concentrated his attention on waterways as a means of making the Northwest territory available and proposed a series of them to connect the Great Lakes with the Atlantic. In support of his plan he carefully computed distances from Detroit to eastern points, including Albany, Montreal, Philadelphia and Richmond.

Valuable Real Estate

The oldest part of Manhattan, often called the "cradle of New York city," is assessed for city tax purposes at $1,000,000,000, the New York Herald Tribune says. The property occupies the 600-acre tract south of a line crossing Manhattan Island from the North river at Harrison street to the East river at James street, following along Worth street to Broadway and Leonard street, east of Broadway. Its estimated selling price is one and one-half billions of dollars.
